10GEN RAISES $42 MILLION FINANCING ROUND LED BY NEW ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATES

10gen to Continue Growing Research & Development Investment for MongoDB

NEW YORK and PALO ALTO—May 29, 2012—10gen, the company behind MongoDB, today announced it has secured $42 million in financing, led by New Enterprise Associates, with participation from existing investors Sequoia Capital, Flybridge Capital Partners and Union Square Ventures. The company will use this financing to invest in product development for MongoDB and the MongoDB Monitoring Service (MMS) and to better support its rapidly growing community and user base worldwide.

MongoDB is the dominant NoSQL database, with top enterprises in Telecommunications, Financial Services, Media, Government and Technology standardizing on MongoDB. The company has experienced tremendous traction in the market with 50% quarter over quarter sales growth for the past five quarters. 10gen has grown its team over 400% since January of 2011 and continues to invest strongly in technology with the majority of its 130 employees in the Technology team.

"We want to change the database market, to make MongoDB the best way for companies to build new applications," said Dwight Merriman, CEO of 10gen. "Our goal is to give tech teams not only a database that scales to any big data level required but also helps developers be productive and more nimble. That has been the vision of the MongoDB open source community and we want to continue to help make that happen."

"I've had my eye on 10gen and their amazing trajectory for several years. They've solidified themselves as the dominate player in the NoSQL market and a real disrupter in the database space in general," said Harry Weller, general partner at New Enterprise Associates. "The NoSQL market is exploding and we see MongoDB becoming the de-facto database for both Web 2.0 companies and large enterprises. We see nothing but continued growth for the company and the MongoDB community."

Additional Highlights:

- Investors include New Enterprise Associates, Sequoia Capital, Flybridge Capital Partners and Union Square Ventures.
- $42 million in new funding brings the total raised since the company's inception to more than $73 million.
